Dear friends and fellow members,

Happy New Year!

I hope the holidays were everything you hoped they would be, and more. I am having a hard time believing that 2017 is already here. My last few years on the board have just flown by, and somehow it is now my turn to lead our Association. All I can say is, "WOW," thank you again for placing your trust and faith in me. I am truly humbled.

As we move into 2017, most start the year with a resolution; be it get physically fit, save more money, or even to learn to play the harp. We try to better ourselves by making a plan for the New Year. More often than not, after a month or so these ambitions fall by the wayside. I have been guilty of that over and over again, but that's because I often set lofty goals for myself. While there is nothing wrong with pushing myself to be better, I have to be realistic, and realize that I will not be an astronaut by the end of the year.

This is what we do at Budget and Planning every year. We start with a resolution or a plan for the year. We begin with some lofty goals, saying, for example, that we want to have 3000 members by the end of 2017. We then review that goal, and discuss ways of making it happen. Once we realize that a goal may not be realistically obtainable, we revise it, perhaps (in our example) to recruit 2500 members. Each goal is scrutinized and revisited until we have reached a practical goal that still pushes us to do better, but can still be achieved. I don't believe we can start by shooting for the stars, but we can sure try to visit the moon.

I mentioned some of my personal goals for the Association at the 2016 Convention. Those will all be reviewed and discussed at B&P, as will any goals the other board members have for ADDC. These are the goals of only 15 people. We have over 1800 members right now. What are your goals for the Association? I urge each and every one of you to give your suggestions to your chapter president, your Regional Director, or any member of the Board. Believe it or not, no idea is "too far out." Who would have thought that we would have chapters conducting meetings over the internet? It is happening now

I am looking forward to all of your ideas, and working with everyone to make 2017 an ambitious, productive, and educational year for our Association.

Maggi Franks

P.S. Be sure to look for my blog and welcome under the new Video Section on the ADDC website.

JOULES OF WISDOM (SOURCE: ENERGY.GOV)

The solar industry is changing rapidly as it experiences unprecedented growth. Here are 6 facts that may surprise you about this increasingly popular source of power.

1. California's Mojave Desert is home to Ivanpah Solar Power Facility, the world's largest operating solar thermal energy plant. It uses concentrating solar power (CSP) technology to focus 173,500 heliostats, each containing two mirrors, onto boilers located in three power towers. The plant, which came online in 2014, has a gross capacity of 392 megawatts (MW). CSP technology is unique in that it allows for solar energy to be stored for use after the sun sets -- a key focus for our recent research and development efforts -- which addresses some of the concerns over delivering solar power when and where it is needed most.

2. As prices continue to fall, solar energy is increasingly becoming an economical energy choice for American homeowners and businesses. Still, the biggest hurdle to affordable solar energy remains the soft costs -- like permitting, zoning and hooking a solar system up to the power grid. On average, local permitting and inspection processes add more than $2,500 to the total cost of a solar energy system and can take up to six months to complete. The SunShot Initiative's soft costs program works to make it faster and cheaper for families and businesses to go solar.

3. Today, demand for solar in the United States is at an all-time high. The amount of solar power installed in the U.S. has increased more than 23 times over the past eight years -- from 1.2 gigawatts (GW) in 2008 to an estimated 27.4 GW at the end of 2015. That's enough energy to power the equivalent of 5.4 million average American homes, according to the Solar Energy Industries Association. The U.S. is currently the third-largest solar market in the world and is positioned to become the second.

4. The space industry was an early adopter of solar technology. In the 1950s, the space industry began to use solar technology to provide power aboard spacecraft. The Vanguard 1 - the first artificial earth satellite powered by solar cells -- remains the oldest manmade satellite in orbit -- logging more than 6 billion miles.

5. The first silicon solar cell, the precursor of all solar-powered devices, was built by Bell Laboratories in 1954. On the first page of its April 26, 1954 issue, The New York Times proclaimed the milestone, "the beginning of a new era, leading eventually to the realization of one of mankind's most cherished dreams -- the harnessing of the almost limitless energy of the sun for the uses of civilization."

6. Solar energy is the most abundant energy resource on earth -- 173,000 terawatts of solar energy strikes the Earth continuously. That's more than 10,000 times the world's total energy use.
